DETAILED ACTION

Election/Restrictions

Restriction is required under 35 U.S.C. 121 and 372.

This application contains the following inventions or groups of inventions, which are not so linked as to form a single general inventive concept under PCT Rule 13.1.

In accordance with 37 CFR 1.499, applicant is required, in reply to this action, to elect a single invention to which the claims must be restricted.

The claims are treated as drawn to method of preparation of a medicament using rapamycin and its structural analogs for the treatment of beta-thalassaemia.

According to PCT Rule 13.2, unity of invention exists only when the shared or corresponding technical feature is a contribution over the prior art. The inventions drawn to the use of analogs of rapamycin for the preparation of a medicament do not relate to a single general inventive concept because they lack the same or corresponding special technical feature. The technical feature of the invention is the analogs of rapamycin, which is known in the art as disclosed by Dickman, et al., Bioorganic and Medicinal Chemistry Letters, 2000, 10, 1405-1408 as antifungal agents, and therefore does not make a contribution over the prior art.

Election of Species

Claims 1 and 2 are generic to the following disclosed patentably distinct species:
unknown number of rapamycin analogs. The species are independent or distinct because the species represent structurally distinct compounds. Applicant is required under 35 U.S.C. 121 to elect a single disclosed species of rapamycin analog wherein all the variants in the molecule clearly specified to represent a single structure with a proper structure that represents the elected species of the rapamycin analog even though this requirement is traversed. Applicant is advised that a reply to this requirement must include an identification of the species that is elected consonant with this requirement, and a listing of all claims readable thereon, including any claims subsequently added. An argument that a claim is allowable or that all claims are generic is considered nonresponsive unless accompanied by an election.

Claims 3 and 4 are generic to the following disclosed patentably distinct species: species of transcription process modifiers. The species are independent or distinct because the species belong to different classes of compounds such as nucleotide (guanosine), mithramycin (antibiotic), hydroxy urea (simple organic compound), etc. Applicant is required under 35 U.S.C. 121 to elect a single disclosed species of the transcription modifier from one class of compounds with a proper structure for the compound corresponding to the elected species, even though this requirement is traversed. Applicant is advised that a reply to this requirement must include an identification of the species that is elected consonant with this requirement, and a listing of all claims readable thereon, including any claims subsequently added. An argument that a claim is allowable or that all claims are generic is considered nonresponsive unless accompanied by an election.

Upon the allowance of a generic claim, applicant will be entitled to consideration of claims to additional species which depend from or otherwise require all the limitations of an allowable generic claim as provided by 37 CFR 1.141. If claims are added after the election, applicant must indicate which are readable upon the elected species. MPEP § 809.02(a).
